

Kevin McGrew

Conflict of Interest Disclosure Statement (09-07-16)

I, Kevin McGrew, am an active scholar who publishes articles, book chapters and books. I also speak at state, national and international conferences. I also serve as the blogmaster for three professional blogs. As per the nature of scholarship and writing, one's research and writing often overlap with specific commercial or financial interests in the same fields. Thus, in an attempt to be transparent, below are the potential conflicts of interest I feel ethically compelled to disclose. Detailed information can be found at the following link:

<http://themindhub.com/about-iap>

- I am a coauthor of the Woodcock-Johnson III Battery (WJ III) and the Woodcock-Johnson IV Battery (WJ IV). I have a financial (royalty) interest in these psychological instruments.
- I was the primary statistical and psychometric expert for the development of the Children's Psychological Processes Scale (CPPS), for which I have a financial (royalty) interest.
- I am the Director and primary owner of the Institute for Applied Psychometrics llc (IAP).
- I am a Visiting Professor in Educational Psychology (School Psychology Program) at the University of Minnesota.
- All my blog writing is performed in my role as the Director of the Institute of Applied Psychometrics (<http://www.iapsych.com>).
- IAP is the mechanism via which I do all my work related to the WJ III, WJ IV and any future related products.
- I am on the Scientific Advisory Board (external consultant) for a neurotechnology company (Interactive Metronome) the produces commercial neurotechnology products and services. I may receive consulting fees for special projects completed upon the request of IM.
- Unless otherwise specified, all my professional writing, research and consultation reflect my opinions and are not necessarily those of: (a) the coauthors of the WJ III, (b) Riverside Publishing (publisher of the WJ III), (c) Interactive Metronome, (d) or the University of Minnesota.
- I am a member of the American Association of Intellectual and Developmental Disabilities (AAIDD) ad hoc Death Penalty Task Force. Any writing or statements I make do not represent the position of this task force—they reflect my opinions.
- Any expert consultation I provide regarding Atkins MR/ID death penalty cases are completed via my role as Director of IAP.